Foreword

In this nineteen hundred and sixty edition of the Greenbriar, the staff and I endeavor to show that just as each piece is essential to complete a picture puzzle, so each of you is a necessary part of our school. Without you, the students, there would be no puzzle; for the most important part would be missing.

It is the sincere desire of myself as editor and the staff that you will let this issue of the Greenbriar be a guide to you as you review your activities, your achievements, and as you find your place in the huge puzzle of Fuquay Springs High School.

Principal's Message

As we draw to the end of this year, we realize that other is, as you no doubt, a good omen. I am also sure that opportunities will be let alone, but on the same time, I am prepared for developments which will, in my and the future, will be of little value to the future unless we strike while the iron is hot. Always be on the lookout for opportunities, and remember that the world is a place of opportunities in return.

With these thoughts in mind, I hope you will take for a start with the following words as a motto:

"Use all your hidden forces. Do not miss the Purpose of life, and do not wait for circumstances to mold you to your liking. You will be doing well if this is true, but trust, trust, trust in all your powers, in your education, in what you have learned, in your friends, and above all, in your family and your God. In all that you do, go to the best, the true, the right, and the good. The soul is a spirit, and the spirit is a soul. If you do not trust in your soul, then you do not trust in the spirit of man. In short, you do not trust in God.

To you . . .

MISS ANNA PRIVOTT

It is with deep appreciation and gratitude that we, the senior class, dedicate this nineteen hundred and sixty edition of the Greenbriar to one who has been to us and to everyone who has come to know her as an inspiring teacher of principles and knowledge. To one who has taught not by word alone, but by example, may we say thank-you for your freely given time, advice, and impartial friendship. To you Miss Anna Privott, we dedicate our annual.

See where you fit in!

Classroom Activities

The first piece to a puzzle is always the most important, for it is the beginning of the formation of all other pieces.

So is instruction. Acquiring knowledge is the very basic reason for any school; the foundation upon which it is built and the broad horizon to which it expands. Fuquay students come here to search for knowledge, enhanced by a common yet diverse education, and an ever-broadening program.

To formulate this ideal, students are offered a wide variety of subjects, from physics to agriculture. In all, approximately thirty-three subjects are offered for the Fuquay student's choice.

Here at Fuquay High School the students are offered two types of courses, college preparatory and general; thus meeting the needs of each boy and girl.

As each student participates in classroom activities, his ideas and character are developed. The student is an actual part of Fuquay High, an actual part of a working organization devoted primarily to unfolding all the potential abilities of her students.

English aids development in self expression . . .

Seniors listen as Dick Ellis speaks on the subject, "Religion."

Sophomores Lynda Beckwith, David Pope, and Ken Moore review the work ahead for them in Julius Caesar.

In the junior class, diagramming comes easy to Faye Honeycutt.

Ever since someone said, "Do you say 2 and 2 is 5 or 2 and 2 are 5?" students have been studying English. Beginning with English I and continuing through English IV, Fuquay students explore English grammar, practice creative writing, read the works of literary masters from all over the world, and gain a good speaking vocabulary in their home language.

Mary Fleming, a freshman, seeks advice from Miss Copeland on theme writing.

... while Social Studies encourage citizenship.

Frantic first period in American history . . .

Gil Crumpler asks a question about Alexander the Great in World history.

Who was Maximillan? Where is Madagaskar? What are the aims of the United Nations? These questions might be discussed in a social studies class.

Every graduate of Fuquay is required to complete four social study courses—one each of United States History, North Carolina History, Economics and Sociology, World History and or Civics and Geography and Government. Through these courses the students are exposed to the past, present, and future.

Students become closer to other countries by studying their geographical location.

Seniors Norwood Pritchett, Bette Bulloch, and Pat Walls, study our economic problems and human relations by reading.

Students study Facts and Figures . . .

Jimmy Parker solves his physics problem by using a slide rule.

$X = a$ broadening field of concentration and $Y =$ approximately 400 Fuquay High students. $X + Y =$ Fuquay's Math Department. Math is studied in its various forms all four years of high school ranging from General Math to Trigonometry. Students have an opportunity to become acquainted with math in its simplicity and complexity.

John David Talley, a freshman, asks Sarah Adams, a junior, to explain an algebraic equation.

Jo Ellen McLean, a senior, explains the proof of a solid geometry problem.

While Billy Adams constructs a geometric figure, Linda Prince measures the degrees in the angles.

... as a foundation for the world around us.

Lewis Love discovers that friction cannot be overcome.

Mr. Ellen discusses the flat worm with interested students.

Ray Stephenson, Kay Lee, Judy Payne, and Mike Owens analyze the contents of this mixture.

Students at Fuquay High are being challenged in the world of science in laboratory classrooms such as General Science, biology, chemistry, and physics. They dissect insects, work with electricity and peek in test tubes—all building on previous knowledge to explore the fascinating unknown.

Students receive an introduction to the Atomic Age through general science.

Students gain practical experience . . .

Julie Aiken, Pat Wood, Brenda Revels, and Jo Ann Cotton bake cakes for the cake sale.

Lynda Sanders and Beverly Allen learn about foods through vocational Home Economics.

Frances Powell and Grace Connor give the Home Economics cottage an over all cleaning.

Every girl needs a course in homemaking—just in case. At Fuquay High girls take part in this program where potential home-makers gather skills that will help them in years to come. These girls study essential skills—sewing, cooking, interior decorating, child care, fabrics, and fashions.

Jackie Yarborough waits patiently, while Brenda Revels measures her hem.

... in Vocational Courses.

Every boy who is interested in farming or agriculture may elect Vocational Agriculture as a part of his high school curriculum. In this course of study are included such phases as classroom activities, supervised farming programs of students, farm mechanics instruction, and Future Farmers of America activities. The teaching method of active participation or "learning by doing" is employed in all instruction.

Boys learn shop by practical application.

Work in the propagating beds provides valuable knowledge.

Classroom instruction is important in vocational Agriculture.

Skipper Phelps, Jimmy Parker, Ken Moore, and Thomas Stephenson are sure to cover their eyes while welding.

Understanding others through Foreign Languages.

Kathy Ann Talley conjugates correctly a word in French

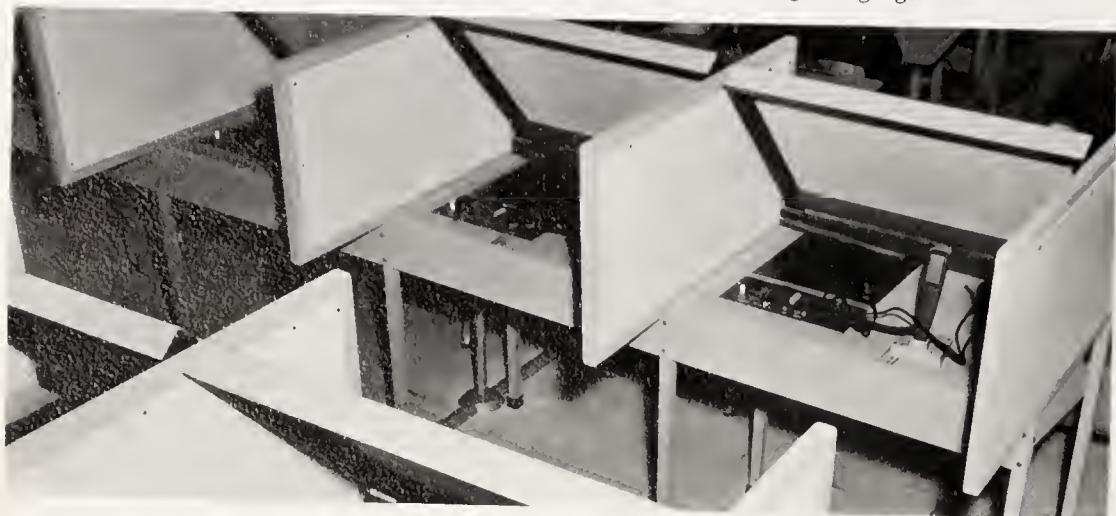

Dickie Powell discusses locations of cities on a French map.

Forest Council portrays the true dress of a Roman citizen.

The language lab aids students in the study of foreign language.

Preparing for the Field of Business.

Have you ever thought that you might like to be a typist, a clerk, or a private secretary. Because these three are essential in the world of business, good jobs can always be found but in order to get a good job you must be not only good but an expert. Here at Fuquay High, courses in Typing I and II, Shorthand, bookkeeping, business arithmetic, and practice in operating business machines are offered to students entering the field of business.

Carolyn Cook efficiently operates the mimeograph machine in the business machines room.

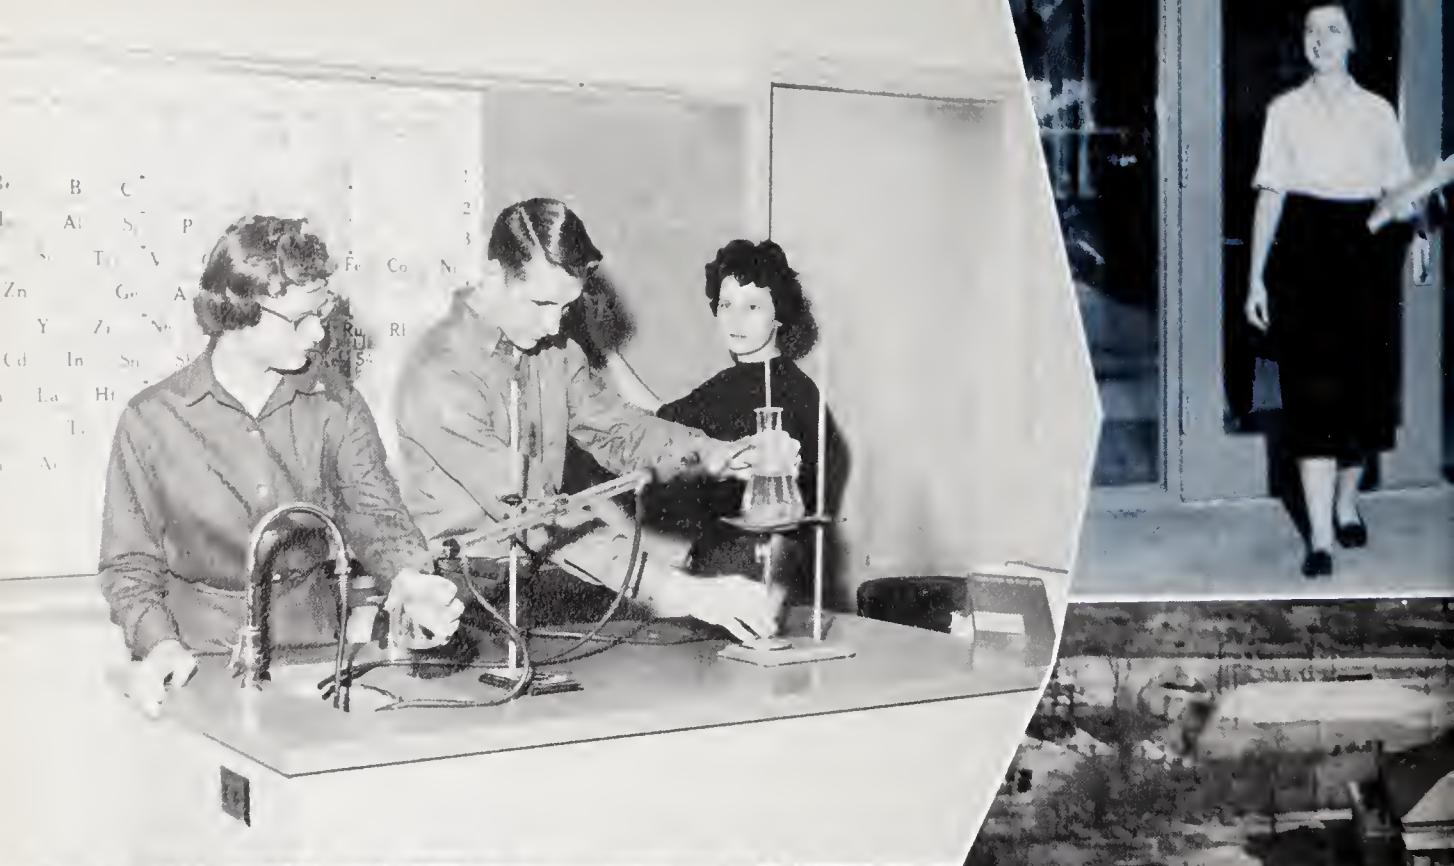

Mary Lou Olive and Mildred McLaurin prepare for the field of business by learning how to use all types of business machines.

Mrs. Ellington advises her students how to keep a neat and accurate account in bookkeeping.

Students learn the basic guide for typing business letters early in the year.

Administration

In the co-operative hands of our administrators, the puzzle is molded. In them rests the responsibility of supervising the many operations necessary for the smooth, efficient functioning of our school. During his years at Fuquay, a student benefits from an association with teachers who are interested and concerned with helping him.

Under the able leadership of our principal, Mr. E. N. Farnell, Fuquay Springs High School has grown in size and prestige. For his untiring efforts to improve our school, Mr. Farnell merits a wave of applause from both the faculty and student body. He is efficiently assisted by Miss Carroll, Mrs. Ashworth, and Mrs. Jones.

The members of the Fuquay faculty truly delight in aiding the students, not only through instruction, but also by sponsoring our clubs, coaching our teams, and contributing to our growth as individuals. We feel fortunate in having such an outstanding school to attend and such an able staff to guide us.

Aiding each student . . .

Activities

As a puzzle must fit together, so must individuals live and work together. Fuquay's extra-curricular activities are organized in order to achieve this goal.

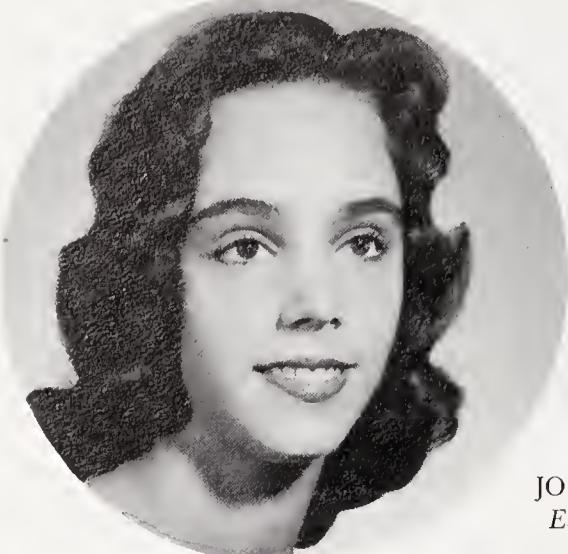

What is the importance of a school? To develop the minds of the students? Yes, but it is just as important for a school to provide a program to develop character, leadership and the ability of each individual.

There are many different organizations and clubs in which every student has the opportunity to present his ideas, carry out projects, share his common interests and in general develop a magnetic personality to get along with his fellow students.

The different activities at Fuquay offer opportunities—unlimited. The band is provided for those students who are musically inclined. Students that participate in sports and letter, become members of the Monogram Club. The Student Council is known as the club governing the student body. Other students who are interested in their scholastic standings and maintain the required average, join the Beta Club. The Greenbriar Staff works together to publish a yearbook that will please the students and show the different functions of the school.

These various organizations help to develop the boys and girls of today into the leaders of tomorrow. They learn that in overcoming obstacles they fit themselves for maturity and happiness.

In striving to do their work well, to win games or to bring credit to themselves, their school, and their families, the students build the heritage that will become the Fuquay Springs High School tradition.

The Student Council is the student-representative organization which closely resembles a form of student government.

It consists of a sponsor, two seniors, two juniors, two sophomores, one freshman, one eighth grade student, one seventh grade student, and one representative from each of the following clubs: Future Farmers of America, Future Homemakers of America, Future Teachers of America, Monogram Club, and the Beta Club.

These members have many responsibilities, which consist of the planning, carrying out and supervision of certain school functions.

The Student Council has its own constitution, and while it is not under the direct supervision of the principal, he may veto any action planned.

Each year the Student Council sponsors the elections, Orientation Day, Twirp Season, Chapel programs, parties, pep rallies, and a major money-making project. The officers of the Student Council are members of the Administrative Committee.

The Student Council tries to promote (1) Better relationships among students, faculty, and parents; (2) A healthy student-attitude; (3) Higher school spirit; (4) High scholastic ratings.

The Student Council is an organization for service and through it, the entire student body may gain a greater understanding of citizenship, leadership, and those essential items which will enable each one to live a more successful, well-informed life.

Looking into the future . . .

The National Beta Club is a non-secret, achievement-service organization for students of senior high schools. It was chartered as an eleemosynary educational organization, under the laws of South Carolina on August 31, 1936. It was instituted and is operated to reward merit, encourage effort, and elevate the moral welfare of high school students.

Our local organization is subject to regulation and supervision by our high school. It is composed of Juniors and Seniors who have maintained a scholastic average of 3.3 quality points. Each member pays a membership fee of four dollars and fifty cents when he comes into the club, and that is all he pays during his high school career.

This year our local organization has had several service projects. We have conducted morning devotions over the intercommunication system for the entire school. One day of each week, two Beta Club members helped the special education students. We were responsible for placing flowers on the stage each Monday for chapel.

Every member participated in these projects, because we know that we can lead by serving others.

The Future Teachers of America is a club organized on a national basis with state, county, and local clubs. Its purpose is to stimulate the interest of qualified students into becoming teachers.

The qualifications for becoming a member of our local club are as follows: (1) the student must be in the Junior or Senior class; (2) the student must have a strong interest in exploring the possibilities of a teaching profession; (3) the student must have an 85 average or better in all the subjects taken in high school; (4) the student must have high moral standards and good potentials as a leader.

The Future Teachers have many projects. Among these are actual classroom observation, assisting teachers, participation in American Education Week and Career Day, and sponsoring a Teacher Appreciation Day to honor teachers in the school.

There are also many activities in which a Future Teacher may participate. Some of these are a state wide convention, county meetings, and the county banquet at the end of the year.

The Future Teachers Club of 1959-1960 have worked under the theme "Quest for Quality." It has tried to stimulate student interest in the profession of teaching through publicity and programs.

The purpose of the Monogram Club is to maintain and promote good sportsmanship within the school and between our teams and competing teams. This purpose can be attained only by playing fairly and by the rules, extending courtesy to visitors, encouraging cheerleaders and spectators to suppress unsportsmanlike conduct, playing as a team and not as individuals, and by upholding good academic records.

Any male student who is awarded a varsity letter in any major sport (football, basketball, track, baseball, and cheerleading) is eligible for membership in the club. Any female student who is awarded a varsity letter in either basketball or cheerleading is eligible for membership. Any student whether male or female lettering as manager is eligible also.

We are proud of the existing club which has, through the years, worked its way to the top of the list as a club of leadership at Fuquay High. Only by hard and sincere work can this club exist as such in future years.

F. H. S. Band contributes . . .

Our school is very fortunate in having such a fine Falcon Band. The Falcon Band, as in the past, participates in all community activities as well as in surrounding areas. In all the previous year, as well as this year, the band has been noted for its neatness and superiority. This year the band is composed of approximately seventy musicians, which is a very large increase from last year's roll. There are many new projects and requirements of the Falcon Band, which are to further its quality. Although it is well-noted, its members are always striving to maintain and keep higher honors. New members are obtained from the Junior Band, when their ability shows them capable of fulfilling the necessary requirements. One of the new policies is the Band Step System, which is laid out in thirty-four steps. Each step has been worked out to obtain best results in instrument technique, sight reading, key signatures, and general knowledge of musical terms. Another of the new policies is the Point System. This System improves and maintains musical interest on the part of each. Also, it is the means used to determine letter grades for each six weeks grading period. The policy of the band list the band officers, their duties, several rules relating to behavior, and wearing of uniforms.

Athletics

As our puzzle begins to take its form, we add our fourth piece—sports. Sports exemplifies the Fuquay spirit; it is her spirit in action.

A sound athletic program has its place in every well-balanced school system. Athletics help students develop many traits and abilities that cannot be taught in the classroom alone. Through competitive sports they learn the value of teamwork. No matter how skilled an individual is he soon learns that he cannot succeed without the full co-operation of his teammates. Leadership is another trait which students develop through participation in competitive sports. The importance of good sportsmanship and fair play is still another good quality which is stressed through athletics. These are only a few of the many good qualities that students can develop by participating in their school's athletic program.

Fuquay High takes great pride in its well-organized athletic program. This program includes football, basketball, baseball, and track. Track is a very recent addition to Fuquay's athletic program; however, it should become a very popular sport here in the near future.

The athletes and coaches of Fuquay High take great pride in their teams. They are willing to work and train very hard in order to improve them. They realize the significance of physical fitness and good sportsmanship in building a successful and winning team. Therefore they continually strive to possess these qualities.

This has been a successful basketball season for the boys' team of Fuquay Springs High School through efforts in teamwork and sportsmanship. The boys lost some close games which could have gone either way.

Much effort and guidance from the coaching staff were determining factors in the boys' first division standing.

Teamwork, sportsmanship, and attitude have led our team to a most successful season. We have tried to play each game as if it were the most important event in our lives. There have been times when we have felt despondent and depressed, but that was to be expected. The team has tried to set a good example for the teams that will follow us. At times, when the game seemed unfair, we have tried to smile and keep our hopes high. We met many friendly and affable people on trips away from home, which added interest to the game. Everything considered, the girls' team has reached the expectations of a good, all-round team this year, never giving up until the last whistle has been blown.

Classes

The final piece in our puzzle is the piece which expresses a spirit of unity and belonging to a group. This may take the form of players on a team, students in the classroom, or members of a well-organized student government. It encourages a loyalty and a feeling of warmth for every member of the group and the group as a whole.

This year over 1400 students have entered Fuquay Springs High School. All have individualities and personalities. But they enjoy their memberships in each class and working together in the various class activities. From first graders to seniors, they have belonged to each consecutive class, working as a team in each, giving of themselves, contributing all they can to the school, and taking advantage of every available opportunity.

Class History

JO ELLEN McLEAN
Historian

Another year is past, for us the last one to be spent in Fuquay Springs High School. We depart in sadness but with happy reminiscence of the events in the lift of our class. Let us review the last four years of this life. Travel back into time with me.

The year is 1956. We are entering high school as freshmen feeling very inferior at first but also proud to at last be in senior high school. Soon we become accustomed to changing classes and to the new freedoms and responsibilities. We elect our class officers this fall; Cheryl Adcock, president; Linwood Daniel, vice-president; Miranda Williams, secretary; and Alice Walters, treasurer. Richard Engle and Nancy Holland are our Student Council representatives. There are a number of organizations which we are allowed to join according to our various interests: the Future Teachers, Future Farmers, and Future Homemakers of America. In sports we are represented by Eugene Truelove and Lynwood Daniel in football, and Miranda Williams and Dolores Ogburn in basketball. Many of our number join the band and glee club. Jo Ann Payne is our freshman editor of the Greenbriar. Donna Dickens and Cheryl Adcock are majorettes.

Let us progress a little farther in time. The year is 1957. We are no longer lowly freshmen, but sophomores. We have been tried and have passed the test. We are one step higher on our high school ladder. This year our officers are Jerry Pore, president; Dick Ellis, vice-president; Miranda Williams, secretary; and Jimmy Tutor, treasurer. Richard Engle and Lewis Love are our Student Council representatives. There are some additional clubs open to us: the Science Club, the Monogram Club and the Latin Club. The number of our member in sports has also grown. Jo Ann Payne and Lucinda Williams are cheerleaders. Our football players are Curtis Holleman, Linwood Daniel, Eugene Truelove, George Bullock and Jackie Lewter. On the baseball team are Jackie Lewter, Richard Engle and George Bullock. In girls' basketball we have Miranda Williams, Judy Currin, Mary Ann Watkins, and Alice Walters. In boys' basketball are George Bullock, Henry Bowling, Eugene Truelove, Dick Ellis and Richard Engle. The Junior-Senior Prom is an exciting experience for twenty-four Hawaiians chosen from the sophomore class to serve. The girls especially enjoyed doing the hula.

Now we have progressed another year—1958. This year is busier than any we have experienced. We are juniors and have one step to go. Our officers are Mary Ann Watkins, president; Norwood Pritchett, vice-president; Sylvia Wagner, secretary; and George Bullock, treasurer. Our Student Council representatives are Richard Engle and Lewis Love. Jo Ann Payne is assistant editor of the Greenbriar; Curtis Holleman, junior editor; George Bullock and Richard Engle, snapshot photographers and several others, on the advertising staff.

Several of our class hold important offices this year in clubs and organizations. Richard Engle, vice-president of the Student Council; Pat Walls, president of the F. T. A.; and Nancy Holland, president of the F. H. A. Members of the Beta Club are Betsy Rogers, Patsy Sherman, Nancy Holland, Jo Ann Payne, Martha Hunt, Dolores Tudor, Patricia Pruitt, Judy Godwin, Al Johnson, Jimmy Parker, Richard Engle, Lewis Love, Georfie Bullock, Mildred McLaurin, Miranda Williams, and Jo Ellen McLean. Betsy Rogers is vice-president.

Cheerleaders, Jo Ann Payne, Judy Smith, and Lucinda Williams cheer football players Richard Breedlove, George Bullock, Eugene Truelove, Curtis Holleman, Linwood Daniel, and William Wrenn. Playing basketball this year are George Bullock, Dick Ellis, Richard Engle, Eugene Truelove, Judy Currin, Miranda Williams, and Alice Walters. Majorettes are Ruth Ann Rowland, Cheryl Adcock, and Donna Dickens.

We have a special task this year—to give our seniors a prom. To finance this we sell candy and give a play. The play, "No Boys Allowed," directed by Mrs. Nancy Powers is a success.

Now we are in Williamsburg walking down the cobbled streets among the old colonial buildings.

The highlight of the year is the Junior-Senior Prom. After much work, planning and decorating we are in the garden of our southern plantation, and we realize that this was well worth our effort. It is a fitting way to say good-bye to our seniors.

The marshals chosen to help with the Baccalaureate Sermon and Graduation exercises are Betsy Rogers, chief; Jimmy Parker, Judy Godwin, George Bullock, Jo Ann Payne, Al Johnson, Dolores Tudor, Richard Engle, and Jo Ellen McLean.

We have come to the last year—'59-'60. We are on the top round of our ladder. We are seniors at last! Class officers are George Bullock, president; Norwood Pritchett, vice-president; Williams Wrenn, treasurer and Miranda Williams, secretary. Dick Ellis and Richard Engle are representatives in the Student Council. Many seniors hold important offices in clubs and organizations. In the Beta Club Betsy Rogers is president; Martha Hunt, secretary; Judy Godwin, treasurer; and Nancy Holland, Student Council representative. In the Student Council Richard Engle is president; Dick Ellis, treasurer; Alice Walters, secretary; and Nancy Holland, sergeant-at-arms. In the Monogram Club, Curtis Holleman is president and Richard Breedlove, Student Council representative. In the F. F. A., Eugene Truelove is Student Council representative. In the F. T. A., Mildred McLaurin is president and Linda Rogers, vice-president.

We are well represented in sports this year. In football, Curtis Holleman and Richard Breedlove helped to win four games. In girls' basketball we have Miranda Williams, Alice Walters, Judy Currin; and in boys' basketball, George Bullock, Eugene Truelove, Richard Engle, Curtis Holleman, and Henry Bowling are players. Our cheerleaders are Lucinda Williams, Judy Smith, and Sylvia Wagner. Majorettes this year are Cheryl Adcock, Donna Dickens, Ruth Ann Rowland, and Sandra Fish.

It is the homecoming game and there is Betsy Rogers, queen; and Judy Currin, senior attendants. The band is playing "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi." We will never forget this night or the dance after the game.

And now comes the thrilling day when we got our class rings. How we admired and rubbed and squeezed them!

American Education week is a busy time for everyone, students, and teachers. We have worked on floats all week, and this is the day of the parade. Soon the parade has completed its course, and it's all over.

We have been fitted for gowns and all that is left is the Junior-Senior Prom and Graduation. Then we will have completed the final step in our ladder. But actually we find that we have just begun. There are many steps ahead of us. This has only been a beginning—a preparation for what is to come. What is to come?

Class Poem

DAWN TO SUNSET

Dim it was, as the peeping of dawn,
Within that entering year.
The seed was sown, and sprout it did,
To grow a high school career.

The year in the second was doubtful, but trying,
And desire the conquerer of fear,
With strife incurable, we pearsed the horizon,
In order our goals to near.

The third was the year of the seize of clearness,
Distinctly could all the world see.
The constant, deliberate movement of gradual rising,
Of power the future to be.

Risen at last, with youth, glow, and strength,
Comparable to the morning-day sun
Holding are we the potentials of success,
With limitations granted to none.

Cloudy shall some lie in their day of life,
Others exert their best.
And reach the zenith of the mighty noon
Shining brightly until the West.

Class Prophecy

DOLORES TUDOR
Prophetess

Each of you, the seniors, are a very important piece of the puzzle of the Class of 1960. Each of you fit into a certain place to make a complete puzzle. Journey with me to the year of 1970, and I will show each of you in which piece you belong in this very important puzzle.

The years swiftly fly by and the first piece of your puzzle slips into place. I see Jo Ellen McLean and Al Johnson bending over an experiment table hard at work on a new synthetic material. George Bullock and his assistant, Sylvia Wagner enter the room. They must learn of the facts discovered, for their science students will be interested in the results. This new synthetic is of great interest to Martha Hunt and Nancy Holland also, as heads of the Home Economics Department. Looking out the window, we see Judy Goodwin, Dean of Women, and her secretary, Linda Smith as they enter the building across campus. They are going to visit Lynwood Daniel, President of the college.

For the next piece of the puzzle, we must go to New York City. We see Kenneth Earnhardt, world-known engineer, taking time off from his job to read the local paper. Over his shoulder we see that Dick Ellis is the editor and owner of the paper, with Calvin Oliver as the assistant editor. We also see in the headlines that millionaire Jimmy Parker, has brought five city blocks, and plans to build the world's largest furniture store. Norwood Pritchett has been selected as manager of the new store with Jerry Pore, Phil Powell, Jackie Lewter, and David Bowden as department managers. Priscilla Arnold, Carolyn Cook, Daisy Spivey, and Lena Johnson are their private secretaries. Turning the page, we see models Mary Ann Watkins, Pat Adams, Judy Currin, Patsy Yarborough, and Mary Lou Olive pictured in the latest Paris fashions. Some of these have been designed by world-famous designers Larry Holleman and Eugene Truelove.

Willa Holleman fits in as another piece of your puzzle. We find Willa in Europe as a foreign missionary.

For another piece of your puzzle we must go to the Research Triangle of North Carolina. First we see Dr. Melinda Powell in conference with Dr. David Henry Senter. They are discussing a new fungus discovered by laboratory technicians Miranda Williams and Dolores Tudor. Across the hall William Wrenn is looking at a new form of marine life brought to him by Jimmie Earp.

For the last piece of your class puzzle, we return to Fuquay. We see Jimmy Stephenson as mayor, and L. D. Jackson as Judge of the Recorder's Court. In the Town Hall we see Patsy Sherman as the town secretary and Floyd Keith as Chief-of-Police. Walking down the street together we see Richard Breedlove, owner of Breedlove's Gulf Service, and Roger Wagstaff, manager of McLean's Grocery, talking with Thomas Stephenson, owner of WFGV, about the new clothing store being opened by Wayne Wortham and George Francis. Lewis Love, president of the Chamber of Commerce, joins them to remind them of the meeting the next night. Across the street are Delores Ogburn, Ellen Barbee, Patricia Pruitt, Judy Wall, Bette Bullock, Doris Underwood, and Peggy Wagstaff entering the new dress shop just opened by Sandra Fish. We find Johnny Bailey, Terry Overby, Ronnie Barbour, and J. R. Woodward discussing the new bus company owned by Halea Banks, while enjoying a soda in the modern drugstore owned by Henry Bowling. In the second booth are Richard Engle and Curtis Holleman, dentists. If we glanced into the office of each quickly, we would see Cheryl Adcock and Linda Rogers, their assistants, busy at work.

To complete the last piece of the puzzle, we must return to the Alma Mater, Fuquay High. Ten years have caused many changes. We see Bryant Tyndall, Principal, talking to his secretary, Mildred McLaurin, while Pat Walls and Linda Welch, bookkeepers for the school are figuring the books for the week. Coming down the hall are Alice Walters, girls' basketball coach; Lucinda Williams, biology teacher; and Jimmie Tutor, band director. They are on their way to attend a teacher's meeting in the library. At the door they are met by Betsy Rogers, Senior English teacher; Reid Robertson, history teacher; Jo Ann Payne, third grade teacher; and Donna Dickens, head of the business department.

The clock of time turns back and each of you are still Seniors of the Class of 1960. You have had just a brief look at the future, and how each of you will fit into the puzzle of your class. Each of you have a different life to live and path to follow, as you wait to become once again a complete puzzle in the future.

OUR FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Tuesday, August 11, 1959 we began another half century of service.
For your faith in the past we are grateful.

We enter a new era with happy hearts, for this faith has given us strength and made us strong.
